

International Resources List

As an international student interested in attending Columbia Business School, you should expect to have sufficient funding to finance the entire course of study. The Business Schools offers need-based scholarships to its international students. The process to apply after admission can be found here. This handout contains information on government agencies, private organizations, publications and websites that might provide a way to locate funding. This is not a Recommended or Preferred Lender List. This is a simply list of international resources that has been collected based on current and former student experience. Students have the right and ability to select the lender of their choice and are not required to use any of the resources on this list.

All students:

International Search Engines:

- Institute of International Education \(IIE\): IIE, which seeks to foster educational exchange, has great resources for international students.
- International Education Financial Aid \(IEFA\): IEFA is the premier resource for financial aid, college scholarship, and grant information for US and international students wishing to study abroad. At this site, you will find the most comprehensive college scholarship search and grant listings, plus international student loan programs and other information to promote study abroad.
- International Research and Exchanges Board: IREX administers various fellowships for non-degree studies as well as one- and two-year graduate degree studies in the US for foreign nationals within 11 areas of study.
- Fulbright Program for Non-US Students: The Fulbright Program enables more than 1,800 new Foreign Fulbright Fellows to enter US academic programs each year. Foreign students may apply for Fulbright Fellowships through the Fulbright Commission/Foundation or US Embassies in their home countries.
- P.E.O. International Peace Scholarship: Provides international women with scholarships of up to $10,000. US and Canadian citizens or permanent residents are not eligible.
