Columbia Business School
The ECLA Program at Columbia Business School is exclusively for entrepreneurs from mid-sized Latin American companies seeking to expand and better compete in today’s global environment.

The rigorous curriculum features:
- Classes on campus and online with Columbia’s world-class professors
- International study tour
- Two projects – Process Improvement and Business Growth – guided by renowned faculty advisors and industry mentors

The ECLA Program equips entrepreneurs with the skills, tools, and network to professionalize and grow their businesses. A key component of the program is that each firm participates with 2-3 leaders. This ensures a shared mindset and experience that enables decision makers to implement the methodologies and changes in their companies.

ILUMÉXICO
ECLA Graduate 2017

Iluméxico is a social enterprise in renewable energy providing solar energy systems to rural, marginalized communities in Mexico. They worked with Professor Alonso Martinez to improve their supply chain management, optimize logistics, and develop market penetration strategies. Within a few months, they reduced the cost of opening new branches by 75%. By switching their inventory model from a product level to a built-for-assembly component model, they were able to reduce their average days of inventory by 38% and bring their logistics costs down to 2.3% of COGS, freeing up working capital to open 4 new distribution and sales centers.

123SEGURO
ECLA Graduate 2017

123Seguro is an online insurance broker based in Argentina. The company was very successful in generating sales leads, but was struggling to optimize its client conversion. Under the guidance of Professor Omar Besbes, they were able to redesign the sales process and reallocate resources into specialized teams led by top sales performers and incentivized with new, more appropriate metrics. Within two months of implementation, 123Seguro was enjoying a 22% increase in monthly sales.

TOUR VACATION GROUP
ECLA Graduate 2013

Tour Vacation Group (TVG) is a vertically-integrated tourism company in Colombia focused on low- and middle-income markets. Upon entering ECLA in 2012, they did not have an online presence due to the complexity of their payment and booking processes. Working with Professor Kamel Jedidi and industry mentors, TVG launched a website and call center, accelerating international expansion that resulted in 30% more sales outlets, 20% more charter flights, and a 70% increase in revenue.

BELEZA NATURAL
ECLA Graduate 2011

Beleza Natural is a chain of beauty institutes in Brazil. Due to issues in their process, they were unable to keep up with customer demand, resulting in lengthy wait times and customer dissatisfaction. With the guidance of Professor Medini Singh, they were able to identify and fix the bottlenecks to increase their capacity, reduce their costs by two-thirds, and increase profitability from 15% to 40% during the time they participated in the program. Annual growth since 2011 has been around 146% and they have gone from 12 salons with 1,500 employees to 31 salons, 17 kiosks and 4,000 employees in 2016.
