Visionary and inspiring, the new online programs provide executives a different way to experience executive education and expand their learning opportunities through flexible online sessions. They are also a great way for teams to learn at the same time.

Professor Hitendra Wadhwa has carefully designed thought provoking curriculum in a flexible learning schedule that maintains engagement among participants and faculty members.

HOW YOU WILL BENEFIT

Online programs deliver skills through a format accessible anytime from anywhere. Participants will work through a series of modules, incorporating lectures, their own work, and collaborative exercises to gain insights and new tools.

- Learn in an online format that meets your busy schedule.
- Gain practical tools that you can put into place immediately.
- Collaborate with others online.

For full program descriptions, please see page 18 for Personal Leadership and page 23 for Driving Strategic Impact: Mastering Strategy Consulting Skills.

WHO SHOULD LEARN ONLINE

This format is appropriate for executives of all levels, though it would specifically benefit individuals or teams who are comfortable learning in an online format.

FACULTY DIRECTOR

Hitendra Wadhwa, Professor of Professional Practice, Marketing Division

The Director’s View “Our Online Programs are a different way to access Columbia Business School. Organizations can expand the benefits of Executive Education to entry- or midlevel managers who may otherwise not be able to participate in our traditional programs. Leading faculty members, cutting-edge content, compelling lectures, and interactive learning communities allow you to tap into our thought leadership on your own terms.”
