Annual Letter
2017—2018

CENTER OVERVIEW
The 2017–2018 academic year will be the final year that Bruce Greenwald, the Robert Heilbrunn Professor of Finance and Asset Management and academic co-director of the Heilbrunn Center for Graham & Dodd Investing, is teaching.

Bruce joined Columbia Business School in 1991. He has won numerous awards, including the Columbia University Presidential Teaching Award which honors the best of Columbia’s teachers for maintaining the University’s longstanding reputation for educational excellence and the Business School’s lifetime achievement award. His classes are consistently oversubscribed with more than 650 students per year taking his courses in subjects such as Value Investing, Economics of Strategic Behavior, Globalization of Markets, and Strategic Management of Media.

With a gift from the Heilbrunn family a permanent home for value investing at Columbia Business School was established as The Heilbrunn Center for Graham & Dodd Investing. Through the Center alumni, students, faculty, and friends in the value investing community stay connected to one another and the School. Greenwald was appointed the Center’s academic director and now shares that role with Tano Santos, the David L. and Elsie M. Dodd Professor of Finance.

Greenwald has made an invaluable mark on the Columbia Business School community. Countless students, alumni, practitioners, colleagues and friends have benefited from his generosity, expertise and knowledge.
One of the Heilbrunn Center’s initiatives is bringing together women interested in value investing as a career trajectory.

This summer The Heilbrunn Center for Graham and Dodd Investing and Columbia Business School’s Private Equity Program co-hosted the second annual women in finance event, A Conversation for Women in Finance. The event was moderated by Professor Donna Hitscherich ’90 (Columbia Business School) and panelists included, Lauren Krueger ’02 (Drivetrain, LLC), and Bola Osakwe (KKR) with introductory remarks from Alissa Wood ’08 (KKR).

In addition to the 2017 Women in Investing (WIN) Conference Information Session, the Heilbrunn Center also hosted a Careers for Women in Investing panel on campus this fall with alumnae and practitioners speaking to the incoming class.

The Women in Investing (WIN) Conference is a pitching forum for women in business schools interested in investment management. It gives the opportunity of real world pitching experience, student mentorship, networking.
